HOMWORK - GUIDELINES

City Academy Bristol believes that homework makes a significant contribution to students' learning.

It has many purposes:

- To encourage the process of independent study and research.
- To contribute to self-discipline, self-motivation and good learning habits.
- To support the learning process, reinforcing work covered and highlighting strengths and weaknesses in understanding.
- To extend the work covered in the classroom by application to similar and more demanding problems, thus widening subject contact time.
- To stimulate a broadening of interest and knowledge beyond the confines of a syllabus.
- To contribute to the progress and assessment of all students providing feedback to students, parents and teachers.
- To provide an important point of contact between parents and work in the School.

In order to achieve this Homework will:

- Be set regularly and with due reference to the age, ability and maturity of the student. Modified homework timetables for those with special educational needs are implemented. Longer and more open ended homework tasks may be designed to afford greater flexibility and differentiation and these are now encouraged throughout all faculties.
- Be an integral part of the Scheme of Work so that it is relevant to work being done or soon to be undertaken;
- Students are encouraged to value homework and get parents involved in the process.
- Be communicated explicitly to students and, where possible, to parents. Where practicable, information on homework will be made available on the website through the publication of homework booklets, generic homework tasks, Schemes of Work etc;
- Consist of a variety of tasks including research, reading, revision, preparation of work to be covered in lessons, written work and test questions;
- A homework club is set up to assist students and parents with the completion of homework.
- Be marked and assessed appropriately in accordance with the nature and purpose of the homework. For some homework tasks (the gathering of information, observation etc) work will not be marked in detail but will be used to support other work. In order to achieve the Aims set out above more effectively, some homework tasks will be carried out over a protracted period, include various elements and will be assessed on a variety of criteria including the development of key skills;
- Be set according to the homework timetable. Wherever possible homework will not be set for completion by the next day to allow students to plan their schedule of work;
- Be monitored by Pastoral and Faculty staff. If a student has a valid excuse for not being able to complete homework on time an extension will be granted – parents are asked to identify the excuse in the student's planner. However, students who fail to complete homework may be given a lunchtime detention or, in the case of repeated failure, an after school detention, to complete missing work.
- At secondary level, the government recommends that the time spent on homework should fall within the following ranges:

Year 7 & 8	45 – 90 minutes per day
Year 9	1 - 2 hours per day
Year 10 & 11	1.5 – 2.5 hours per day

The involvement of parents in the completion of homework is welcomed where parents assist in helping students understand concepts or what is required of them, in testing learning, checking that homework has been completed etc. Parents are asked to sign their son/daughter's planner weekly and to communicate concerns through the student planner.
